C1. Process Details:

The solvent should actually extracts ONLY the gold component from the Aqua Regia dissolution, making the purity very high (99.99% after one operation, 99.999% after two operations).

The solvent chemical used should be reused over and over again so the production and running cost for such an equipment is very low.

The following steps & specification are involved:

-Denitration of Aqua Regia by de-pressurising with an ejector and proper stirring

-First step will be pre-extraction which is mixing of solvent with organic layer which is mostly insoluble in water

-Mixing of H₂AuCl₄ with Solvent by air stirring and depressurising the vessel (It will be a glass vessel with recovery condenser)

-Entire H₂AuCl₄ will be extracted in Solvent whereas impurities will be laid behind in the Aqueous phase. This is then separated out

-Further the mixture of H₂AuCl₄ + Solvent is treated with Extraction solution, similarly by air stirring. This will then extract the solvent and Au(OH)₃ will remain as lower and aqueous phase.

-The separated solvent is recycled back for re-use in next batch of extraction.

-The Aqueous phase is sent for gold reduction step to precipitate gold which is done after acidifying the gold solution.

-This gold is minimum 999.9 and 2 step extraction can yield 999,99 purity.

-Process development & validation in vendor`s scope.
